

NATIONAL SPORTS SEDAN 2022 SERIES – ROUND 2 PRE-EVENT MEDIA RELEASE

FAMOUS NAME TO DEBUT IN SPORTS SEDANS AT WINTON ROUND OF THE 2022 PRECISION INTERNATIONAL - NATIONAL SPORTS SEDANS SERIES.

After a tightly fought first round at Phillip Island, the Precision International National Sports Sedan Series will return to the track with a bang at Winton Raceway this weekend with a famous name gracing the grid.

Mason Kelly, the son of Bathurst 1000 winner Todd Kelly, joins a packed 24-car strong sports sedan field for the second round of the season which will act as a support to the Supercars Winton SuperSprint.

The 17-year-old junior racer will drive the MARC car owned by Stuart Eustice in his debut, as he looks to forge a career in motorsport just like his dad.

Kelly has committed to the next three rounds of the national series, which National Sports Sedans Series Director Michael Robinson described as a boost to the category.

“Mason is a bit of an unknown, he’s a late entry. He’s in a very good car suitable for that track, it’ll be ideal for him,” Robinson said.

“He has committed to the next three rounds, which is a bonus.”

Kelly headlines a list of nine new competitors for the Winton round, which will host competitors from every state.

Foxtel will broadcast all the action in the second round, exposing the thrills, spills and noise of Sports Sedans racing to a national audience.

Robinson is confident that his category will thrive on the big stage.

“We supported Supercars back in 2015 at Winton and are looking forward to heading there again. Foxtel coverage of our races is a big drawcard for all the competitors,” he said.

“The whole area is booked out for accommodation, it’s a very well supported event and when the fans see the Sports Sedans, I’m sure they’ll be excited.

“We want to put on a good show for the public, 24 cars around that track will be pretty impressive, lots of noise!”

Audi A4 steerer Jordan Caruso enters Round 2 as the points leader, just five points clear of veteran Steve Tamasi.

While those two will be hard to beat this time around, Robinson believes that the tighter track at Winton will bring others into contention.

“The current leader Jordan Caruso is fired up and ready to go, as are fellow frontrunners Steve Tamasi and Shane Woodman,” Robinson said.

“Those three, Shane Bradford and Daniel Crompton will be in contention at the pointy end.

“I think the shorter track will change up the order a bit, level the playing field.
